Atlas of Botany

An Exploration of Plants Across Time and Around the World

A beautiful exploration of how plants have spread across the world, adapting to and shaping their environments

THE PITCH

- AUTHORITATIVE: Developed in collaboration with experts at the Royal Botanic Garden Edinburgh
- UNIQUE BLEND OF INFORMATION: Brings geography, science, and history together for a uniquely rounded view of plant life on Earth
- THE SCIENCE OF PLANTS: Uncovers the intricate and sometimes bizarre ways that plants have adapted to live everywhere
- BROAD APPEAL: For readers interested in botany, nature, and history, and gardeners wanting to understand where plants come from and the conditions they thrive in

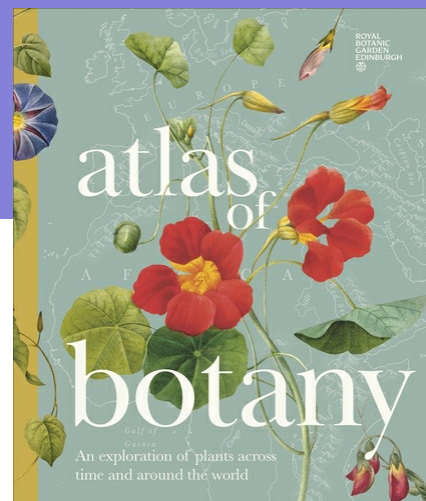

THE BOOK

From the earliest green shoots to dense tropical forests, discover how plants spread across the world to build our environment.

Plants first emerged on a very different looking Earth 500 million years ago. As land masses moved, plants were brought together in fierce competition with one another, or separated to continue their lives in very different conditions. On this evolutionary journey, they developed ingenious strategies to disperse and extend their range, and increase their diversity.

Plants have populated almost every part of Earth's land surface – from tropical zones to cracks in city pavements – and have fundamentally shaped Earth's natural regions. Mapping the changing conditions and continents of the ancient world and the biomes of the modern one, Atlas of Botany explores how plants have overcome the challenges of survival, and how they have interacted with pollinators and people along the way.

Blending science, geography, and history, Atlas of Botany uses fascinating maps and stunning botanical illustrations interwoven with sumptuous photography to tell the story of how plants evolved and survived – and continue to thrive.

In Nature's Slipstream

How to Turn Your Garden into a Haven for Nature

Carol Bruce

Discover a new way of gardening hand in hand with nature to create a beautiful, wildlife-friendly space

THE PITCH

- A NEW GARDENING METHOD: Carol Bruce's holistic method is new – from designing in harmony with the landscape to choosing plants that look after themselves
- PROVEN RESULTS: A climate-resilient approach for gardening today and in the future – based on meticulous records kept for more than 20 years and fully photographed

- POPULAR GARDEN: Carol's garden in Kent is open to the public through the National Garden Scheme, and has been featured in gardening magazines and on BBC Gardeners' World

THE BOOK

Welcome to another way of being: one where the gardener and nature work hand in hand to create something beautiful and sustainable

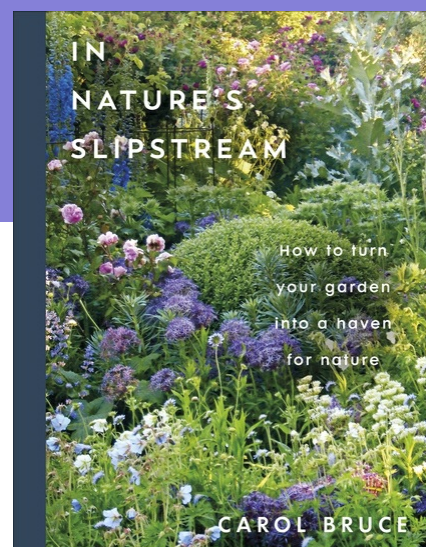

Carol Bruce has spent over 20 years considering how we relate to nature and the implications this has for gardening. Driven to find a balance between a wild and cultivated environment, she developed a method that brings both together in a holistic system, which has resulted in a garden of otherworldly beauty.

A self-taught gardener, Carol has designed a spectacular garden from scratch, which harnesses self-sowing and natural selection to thrive free from irrigation, pesticides, and fertilizer. She now shares her knowledge, proven techniques, and planting schemes to give others a shortcut to transforming their own space – whether starting from a blank canvas or a garden to adapt.

In Nature's Slipstream recounts the world through her eyes and acts as a personal gardening tutor so that you too can achieve a beautiful, manageable garden that is in balance with nature.

THE AUTHOR

Born in suburban South East England in 1969, Carol Bruce grew up with an unshakeable desire to live in the woods, and an innate drive to examine the forces that stand between us and our connection to nature. After studying economics at the University of Cambridge, she began methodically exploring new ways of relating to the natural world that can bring sustainability and artistry onto the same page, resulting in the creation of a garden and a philosophy that are a fusion of both. She opens her award-winning garden at Old Bladbean Stud for charity through the National Garden Scheme, and shares the garden's progress through the seasons via Facebook. Carol makes nature-inspired jewellery for a living, which is marketed through her Etsy shop Reweaving the Rainbow, and she spends all her spare time peacefully walking in the woods.

Head in the Clouds

How the Weather Can Impact and Enhance Our Mental Health

Professor Trevor Harley

A rich and timely account of how the weather can affect our psychology and benefit our mental health

THE PITCH

- EXPERT AUTHOR: Professor Trevor Harley is the University of Dundee's Professor Emeritus of Psychology and a media expert featured by BBC, the Guardian, Sunday Times and more.
- POWERFUL PERSONAL STORIES: Framed by the author's own story of how the weather 'saved' his mental health, as well as first-hand case studies throughout.
- ENVIRONMENTAL PSYCHOLOGY: Addresses the two-thirds of Americans (psychiatry.org) and a third of young people in Britain (YouGov.poll) who are anxious about impacts of climate change. Also anyone experiencing low mood in the autumn and winter months - the NHS estimates around two million people in the UK experience SAD.
- ECOLOGICAL WISDOM: There is a growing desire to live alongside nature in more meaningful ways and this book offers a scientific take on living in sync with the seasons.

THE BOOK

Why do most of us feel more miserable on a rainy day? Why are people more likely to commit violent crimes on a hot summer's night? And why on earth are we humans so obsessed with the weather?

Weather affects us all the time - often in surprising ways - but there are steps we can take to work with the weather and not against it, benefitting our mental health in the process.

For Professor Trevor Harley, understanding the weather and how it impacts our wellbeing saved his life. Here, he draws on this deeply personal journey, the experience of others and robust research to show how the weather affects our psychology and behaviour and, importantly, what we can do about it.

From the rise in climate anxiety to the sweeping impact of Seasonal Affective Disorder, Professor Harley invites you to discover how adverse weather conditions affect different people. He offers practical advice on how to mitigate the negative effects of weather (or at least, learn how to accept them) and make the most of the positive ones. After all, you can't change the weather - but you can change how you respond to it.

THE AUTHOR

Professor Trevor Harley is Professor Emeritus of Psychology at the University of Dundee, with a special interest in the weather who is often called upon to speak about the connection between weather and human behaviour in the media. He is the author of several academic books including The Psychology of Weather (Routledge 2018; there is more on this title below); his books have been translated into several languages. He studied Natural Sciences at the University of Cambridge in 1979, followed by a PhD in Experimental Psychology, also at Cambridge before pursuing an academic career in psychology, spending ten years at the University of Warwick before moving to the University of Dundee in 1996, where he was later Head of Department and then Dean.

Nature is the Answer

A Toolkit for Eco-Positivity

Chris Packham

Recognize and reduce eco-anxiety with the help of award-winning conservationist, broadcaster, and writer Chris Packham

THE PITCH

- PRACTICAL MANUAL: Climate breakdown and eco-anxiety are explained, alongside pragmatic tips on building resilience and taking action to combat “green grief”
- AUTHOR-LED TITLE: Globally recognised author with huge international recognition and popularity
- ORIGINAL FORMAT: The first non-fiction book from Chris Packham directly targeted at a middle grade audience, with environmental-friendly production credentials
- POSITIVE MESSAGE: Provides hope rather than doom and gloom, and advocates for nature as an antidote to climate anxiety – green time over screen time!

THE BOOK

Understand eco-anxiety, build resilience, and make sure your demands for the future are heard with this guide to facing green grief.

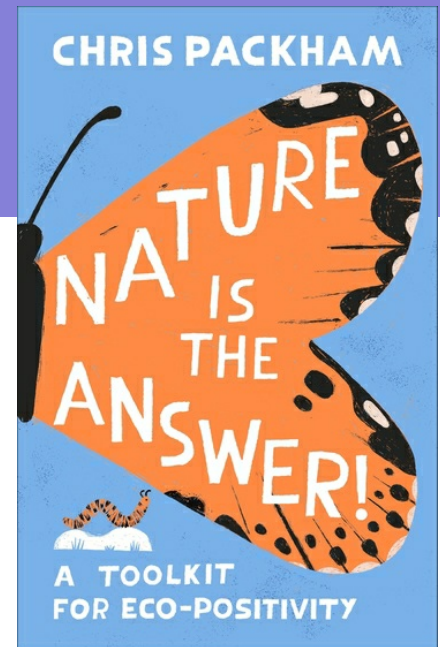

Chris Packham experiences eco-anxiety often. Climate breakdown can feel overwhelming and cause many worries about the future. But that doesn't mean the wild world can't be an amazing place. In fact, if eco-anxiety is caused by the state of nature, then perhaps the state of nature has answers to our eco-anxiety.

This book confronts climate breakdown, normalises eco-anxiety, and trumpets advocacy – while keeping the joy of nature at the forefront of your mind. Practical, science-backed tips and tricks to lessen green grief – such as forest bathing – are mixed in with key bits of climate information and perspectives from young people and experts from around the world. There is also advice on activism (small-scale and large-scale), navigating social media, and discerning fake news.

Personal anecdotes from Chris' many years working as naturalist will be interspersed throughout, emphasising that nature can still be a joyous place – and that it still holds many answers to the biggest personal and global problems we face. Because, as Chris has found throughout his career, Nature is the Answer.

THE AUTHOR

Chris Packham is a top TV naturalist and an award-winning conservationist, photographer, and author. As a young scientist, he researched kestrels, shrews, and badgers, and studied zoology at Southampton University. His career began with the award-winning Really Wild Show for the BBC, and he is now co-presenter of the BBC's Springwatch, Autumnwatch, and Winterwatch. His 2017 memoir Fingers in the Sparkle Jar was a no.1 Sunday Times bestseller.

Minotaur Boy

Shane Hegarty

This isn't your average growing up story. Alex thought navigating puberty was hard enough, now he discovers he's also part-minotaur

THE PITCH

- RELATABLE FANTASY: A fresh, unputdownable story that blends everyday school life and the universal struggles of puberty, being different, and finding acceptance with fantastical and mythological elements
- BESTSELLING FANTASY AUTHOR: Shane Hegarty, whose award-winning middle-grade fantasy novels have been translated into 20 languages, joins the DK flip list with a brand new unforgettable series AND hero, Minotaur Boy
- ACCESSIBLE MIDDLE GRADE: With its punchy writing, short chapters, laugh-out-loud humour, and retro illustrations inspired by popular vintage comics, this book is an accessible and engaging read for middle-graders
- MYTHS WITH A TWIST: This story stands out in the popular mythology genre for middle-graders with a brilliant new twist: the monster is the hero

THE BOOK

Alex is like any other twelve-year-old: he's trying to survive school, navigate awkward body changes, and avoid his parents' embarrassing "talks". But Alex is hiding a secret...

Alex is part-minotaur. You read that right – part-boy, part-bull. Instead of just battling with spots the size of Mars (thanks puberty) and the looming school musical, he also has to worry about horns and hairy toes! Just when he thinks life couldn't get worse, a new kid, Theseus, shows up at school, and he's on a quest to capture a minotaur. And a clumsy one like Alex is an easy target...

With heart, humour, and a lot of mythological chaos, bestselling author Shane Hegarty's newest middle-grade fantasy book is a fantastical twist on the everyday embarrassments of growing up and the struggle to fit in. This story will resonate with anyone who's ever felt different... or anyone who has ever been hunted by a demi-god!

THE AUTHOR

Shane Hegarty has been writing stories for children since 2015, when middle-grade fantasy Darkmouth was shortlisted for the Waterstones Children's Book Prize. Shane is also the author of bestselling series Boat, which was nominated for the Sainsbury's Children's Book Prize, and Big Berry Robbery, which was shortlisted in the Laugh Out Loud Book Awards 2025.

Ruby Fresson creates timeless, bright, and humorous illustrations inspired by early 20th century comics and Japanese art. Her bold artwork has gained international acclaim, appearing in major publications like The New Yorker, The New York Times, The Guardian, and GQ.
